Three found guilty, two acquitted as social organization bias ended

Graham troupe in dance drama

Widely acclaimed by leading critics as America's foremost dancer is Martha Graham, who will appear for one performance at the Joseph Smith Auditorium March 18, at 8:15 p.m.

She is being sponsored by the Department of Physical Education of the Brigham Young University.

This appearance is included in her first extensive tour since war-time. After her tour she will open with her show on Broadway.

She and her dance company will present her unique form of dance drama which she claims to be truly native to this country.

One outstanding new work Miss Graham is presenting is entitled "Leah" which she adapted from an ancient legend and a ballad current in Elizabethan times. All dances were created by this famous dancer-choreographer.

Miss Graham has named the mistress of the solo dance "Leah" for her first solo which will be offered in the bill to be seen here, it is promised.

Arrangements for Martha Graham's appearance here were made by her representative, Charles B. Green of Consolidated Contests Corporation.

'Barretts' Friday performance helps graduate

Dr. T. E. Pardoe initiated the return of an old custom at the Friday night performance of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." The performance was a testimonial in behalf of Ariel S. Balliff, Jr., former BYU student and son of Dr. Ariel Balliff of the Sociology department.

Ariel Jr., graduated from the Y in 1948. He worked in New York City for a while and during the winter of '48 and '49 he was the designer for the Duxbury Players Guild, in Duxbury, Mass. Mr. Balliff had the winning Varsity show script in 1947. It was a musical comedy about school life, called "Boys at the Bixies." He and his sister Moana directed the play.

The young Mr. Balliff is presently studying at Yale, in New Haven, Conn. He is engaged in a three year graduate program in lighting, and costume and stage design.

Dr. Pardoe planned to dedicate the Friday evening performance of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" to aid in sending Mr. Balliff to Germany for five weeks this summer. He will be studying at Salzburg, at the Salzburg Festival, Moxartium.

Dr. Pardoe wishes to revive this old custom of having testimonials to help out those folks who are interested in furthering their creative and artistic ability. It is Dr. Pardoe's desire that this may be done each year for the outstanding person from BYU. There is more need of helping those in need," said Dr. Pardoe.

PAGLIACCI COMING UP—Director of BYU Opera Workshop councils with co-workers Jon Beck Shank, Dorothy Gilcrest and Mary Ann Mordock on stage settings. The workshop will present "Pagliacci" and "Down in the Valley" March 1-4 in the Auditorium of the J. S. Bldg.

Madrigal selection slated for Thursday

Brigham Young University's Madrigal chorus will present a program of Sixteenth century music Feb. 23 at 8:30 p.m. in College hall, according to Margaret Summerhays, assistant professor of music.

The concert will feature such Sixteenth century musical instruments as the recorder, viola d'amour, harpsichord and viola di gambo.

Selections which will be played will be taken from such masters as Jannequin, Duranti, and Pilkington, in addition to Johann Strauss and Bach.

At reduced prices too . . .

Camp, Detwiler star in opera double feature come March 1

Under the direction of Newell Weight, the BYU music department will present four nights of operatic entertainment, March 1-4. Each night will be heard two widely different compositions, "Pagliacci" and "Down in the Valley."

"Pagliacci," a famous Italian opera, will be sung in English by the "BYU" opera members. Its story consists of a play within a play. Canio and his wife Nedda are members of strolling players. In the evenings performance they are doing the story of an unfaithful wife. It nearly parallels Canio's own situation and he, in a fit of rage, confronts his wife and demands to know the name of her lover. The audience thinks his actions and words are to the play and are delighted with the performance. Finally, in blinding jealousy, Canio kills his wife.

Knights try hand at fling in Social Hall shindig

Templers will sponsor today's afternoon fling at the Social Hall, according to John Tishak, unit president.

Taking principal parts are: Canio, Elden Wood, John Corry; Tonio, Howard Putnam; Moplie Brown, Peppe, Rex Johnson, Vern Wilcox; Nedda, Marcene Campbell; Desie Ann Mechem; Silvio, John Hyde. All parts will have alternate performers.

The evening's second production, "Down in the Valley," is a new form of opera, told in ballad style and uses folk themes and songs. This will be its initial performance in Utah but it has been produced numerous times in other parts of the U. S. with wide acclaim. It is a modern folk song. (Continued on page 7)

To Kalon, Val Norn find loophole in unit procedure

Brigham Young University authorities To Kalon and Val Norn were acquitted in the last of a short string of social unit trials.

The two girls' groups found a legal loophole in the interorganization council constitution, and sent out announcements to rush parties yet kept within lawful bounds.

Bill Knecht, Crafter, Mass., prosecuting attorney, presented as evidence a rush party semi-invitation issued to specific rushes by the To Kalons prior to their initial retort-together for the winter quarter. This the prosecution contended was in conflict with section two of the constitution which prohibits any sort of invitation.

The defense, represented by Gene Shumway, Mesa, argued that their printed notices were not invitations to the party because they had no specific time, date or place mentioned on the card. These cards, which the To Kalon attorney stated were favors rather than invitations, merely asked the recipients to consider To Kalon.

The court recessed after fifteen minutes of casual debate and returned immediately to hand down its acquittal decision.

Knecht then withdrew similar charges against the Val Norn unit. He indicated that this would end all prosecutions for the winter quarter rush period.

Three were found guilty by the court during the initial sessions were Cora Tice, Fidelas and Knight Templars.

'Story of Venus' set by O.S. Trovata cast

"Grecian Reflections, A Story of Venus," will be presented by the O. S. Trovata social unit on the student body assembly, Thursday, Feb. 23, in the Joseph Smith Auditorium.

The play begins with a despondent and bored Venus on Mt. Olympus being entertained by the Muses, each trying, in their own way, to please her.

"An added feature of the assembly will be the presentation of two new O.S. original songs, "My Love Is Like a Shadow" by Colleen Harmon and "Dream Song" by Claire Stoddard," said Pat Quinn, general chairman.

Aiding Pat with arrangements are Joyce Crandall, costumes; Birden Terry and Colleen Harmon music; and Patti Crawley, dancing.

CRITICS LAUD SUCCESS—Judged as one of the finest productions to be presented at the Y in many years, "Barretts of Wimpole Street" proceeds of last Friday night will aid Y grad.

Former student joins research group to study Peruvian culture

Ross T. Christensen, a former BYU student, will leave soon for Peru to conduct archaeological research.

A government commission, appointed by President Truman, selected Mr. Christensen's application to be one of the five which were submitted to the Peruvian government for approval. Mr. Christensen was one of two selected from the five.

Mr. Christensen's father, Oswald Christensen, is head of the mathematics dept. at Rice College, Rexburg, Idaho. His brother Dr. Harold F. Christensen, was formerly head of the sociology department here.

Mr. Christensen graduated from BYU in 1945, receiving a BA in sociology. He received a MA in anthropology in 1947. That summer he attended summer school at the University of New Mexico, and then spent a year at Yale.

The archaeological research in Peru will be on prehistoric Middle American-Andean culture correlations. The U. S. government will furnish transportation to and from Peru and the Peruvian government will pay monthly allowances.

Mr. Christensen will spend most of his time along the northern coast of Peru. He will investigate the early cultures there, in relation to the other cultures of the new world.

'She Stoops to Conquer' casted as next Speech department play

The first week of the new quarter will bring another outstanding drama production from the BYU Speech Department.

According to Morris Clinger, director, the cast for "She Stoops to Conquer," has been selected and rehearsal will begin immediately.

Says Mr. Clinger, "Open try-outs were held in which many students participated. The cast was chosen with the idea of being fair to members of the speech department and with the idea of new faces. I am looking forward to shaping this excellent cast toward making an outstanding performance."

Graduate school veterans must check with bureau

Students applaud Kia Ora assembly

Precise timing and faultless symmetry, evidence of long hours of diligent practice, added much to make the assembly given by the Kia Ora club last Thursday, Feb. 10, one of the student body assembly presentations of this quarter.

This club, composed of New Zealand enthusiasts dressed in native regalia, presented a brief history of the brave Polynesian peoples who challenged the Pacific to fulfill prophecy and to find new lands for their very own.

"We have tried, by way of native songs and dances, to present a bit of culture of these Maori people," reports Robert Parsons, president of the group.

Aiding General Chairman Joseph T. Hapi, with arrangements were Glenn and Colleen Horspol, Artamesia Ballif, Albert Whanga, Oscar Walsh, Connel Roberts and Vera Chapman.

There just can't be any blue Mondays on the BYU campus because the weekends are painted up so red that they haven't had time to fade by the time Monday rolls around again.

The O.S.'s with their Club Trottata entertained guests from more different places than any other night club in the nation. One of it's drawing cards is its unique floor show. The Brickerette chorus line however is expected to leave in the Spring to join Ken Murray's Blackouts. The star vocalist, Beverly Wenz and dancer Jim Little will remain throughout the summer season, however.

Some prominent couples about town who were seen at the club Friday, 17, as the club observed its annual invitational, were Lee Fillarup and Sue Flake, Monte Hickenlooper and Colleen Harmon and Spencer Papworth and Carol Weisburz.

Running competition with the Club Trottata Friday night was the Vikings Jiggs Poker party down at Dinty Moores. All famous come strip characters were present via Lee Bartlett's hand. All the guests were a little startled by the presence of Adam and Eve however. Gene "Cave man" Jensen received top billing as the funniest man there and Francis Magelby, that petite Cougrette, as the funniest girl. Los senores Jack Joties and Carolyn Cox were distinguished as the best dressed couple, being arrayed in a Castilian costume. Even odd wash day blues were there in the form of Keith Deeds and Elaine Evans and won prizes for the most unique couple.

Star gazers had a heyday Saturday night after the game at the Universe Explorations dance, and ambulances were kept busy as one couple after another became moon-struck. The most seriously injured were Don Erickson and Dahnelle Adeox, Hank Williams and Dorems Sumter, and Bonnie Davis and Dick Holden.

Students on this campus seem to think that this spring weather we've been having is ring weather. Vie Billings, of the House of Israel successfully cast a ring on the hand of Darvil Thompson of the House of the Seven Gables. And men, Dick Kleks is no longer a menace to you as he has become engaged to Jocelyn Peterson. Johnnie "Blue Key" Lee recently completed one of his graduation requirements by giving a diamond to Pat Mason.

Although the buttons were the fashion feature on women's clothing last fall pins have taken the spotlight this year. Paul Bond's Tauipi pin neatly adorns Ruth Kose and Mark Osdham, although he lost his Lambda Delta Sigma pin to Garna Taylor, won one of units menace loving cups.

Cougars lose four straight, beat Utah to emerge from slump

Redskin series proves 'tough'

The never-say-die Brigham Young Cougars crept back into the win column Saturday night at the expense of the Utah Redskins. Friday night at the Ute fieldhouse the Cats had dropped a 50-42 decision but they came back the next evening to flash their old form and dump Vadal's boys 66-48. Add the weekend split of two games to the three games lost the preceding week and you have a third place club.

Friday night's affair was a sad one indeed. The Redskins jumped off to an early lead and were never headed. They led at one point 18-7. Late in the first half the Cougars staged a rally but when the first half ended the only Cougar threat also ended. The score at half time was 30-20.

In the second half the Redskins scored as they pleased, which was often, and the Cougar fans present were very sorry they spent such a wasted evening. The Utes enjoyed as much as a twenty point lead at one time.

High point honors for the night went to Glen Smith who dropped 15 through the hoop. Dolan Comdie had 14, hitting on five shots in nine attempts from the floor and making all four tries from the foul line. Glen Duggins was third high for the Redskins with 12. Joe Nelson played a fine game and was high man for the Cougars with 13 points.

The Utes were definitely hot, getting 20 for 30 for a high 49 per cent of their shots. They also cashed in on 16 out of 21 from the foul line. The Cougars on the other hand, and they should have used it, could hit on only 18 of 62 shots or 29 per cent.

BIG MEL SCOWLS—While the ball slips through Mel's big mitts like a bar of slippery soap Utes Duggins, Smith, and Shrum prepare to move in for the recovery. Hatch obtained ball.

Saturday night at Springfield was an entirely different story. It was the Cougars that were never in danger. After Glen Smith started the scoring with a layup the Cats tallied 13 points straight before the Redskins could score again. The Cats led 19-5, 24-10, and 32-12 before the Utes put on a rally that made the score 28-18. Mel Hutchins ended the first half scoring with a layup that made it 30-19.

Dolan Comdie opened the second half scoring with a one hander from outside. This set the Cougars off on another spree that netted them 14 points in a row and gave them their highest margin of the night, 23, and a 44-21 lead. Roland Minson accounted for half of these points.

Utah finally found the range, and with Glen Smith leading the team with four in a row, narrowed the score, added by two runs of eight and nine points each, to 51-44. Then Joe Nelson dropped one to end the mild threat.

For the second night in a row Glen Smith was high point man with 18, 12 of which came in the second half. Smith was followed closely by Mel Hutchins and Joe Nelson who garnered 17 apiece. Roland Minson added 15 to the Cougar cause.

The box score of the games appears below.

(See box scores on page 8)

Eastern swing hurts chances

The Cougar conference express, rolling smoothly on the foundation of eight straight wins, was rudely sidetracked if not completely derailed on an eastern swing which saw the Cats drop three in a row, the last two to Colorado A&M, Skyline Six cell-ar dweller.

The Cougars dropped the opener in Denver on a Friday night, causing some surprise, but no great consternation, for the Pioneers are a sound outfit. The score was 54-48.

Faul Hickey led the Pioneers with 18 points followed by Sid Ryan with 15. Joe Nelson garnered 13 for the Cats, all but one of his points coming in the first half.

Faul Hickey's clipping was a tough one to take. The Colorado A&M Rams looked like the champs and the Cats like the tail-enders, while Glen Anderson led his rambunctious mates to a 40-30 win, the Rams' first in hoop play. Anderson tallied 13 points.

The Monday night clash was the one the Waits-coached crew had to win, but they couldn't turn the trick. Instead, Anderson got even hotter, tallying 28 points in the 35-46 contest. The Cougars' play was better. The officiating wasn't, Joe Nelson, who never faults out, had four personal on him before he got warmed up, even.

The entire team's scoring slumped badly in the trip. Nelson had 21 for the three games, Hutchins 22, and Minson 25. Any one of those totals is a good evening's work for the boys usually.

National Sports

by Dan Clay

Each week 140 sports writers and broadcasters vote to determine the ten top basketball teams in the country. Points are given on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, and so on. This poll is conducted by the Associated Press.

Now we feel that this poll is slightly inaccurate. One prejudiced first place vote can offset ten well-meaning tenth place votes. Another point is that most of the sports writers polled come from big cities and therefore the home teams are favored for two reasons. One, they like to see the local teams up there in the standings and, two, they watch the teams at home where they have a greater advantage. With the strain of travel and playing four games in maybe six days.

Also, consideration is not made for the toughness of the schedule or the number of home and away games. Take Holy Cross as an example. The Crusaders, top team in the country, have won all their twenty games but practically every one has been against lesser opposition.

Several weeks ago LIU coach Clair Bee charged that Kentucky null its reputation on a pushover schedule. This year's pushover schedule includes such teams as Villanova, Bradley, St. John's, DePaul, North Carolina, and Notre Dame, plus some 6000 miles spent on the road. The Wildcats' record to date is 17-4.

Adolph Rupp, Kentucky mentor, then countered by citing part of Long Island schedule which includes such basketball powers as Virginia Tech, Ithaca, Lawrence Tech, Fort Monmouth, Quantico Marines, Hartwick, John Marshall, and that terror of the hardwood, Equibale Life. Their schedule includes only away game, played last week. In this game LIU barely managed to eke out a 51-49 win at Springfield, Mass.

One of the most flagrant examples of prejudiced voting is manifested in the twelfth place ranking of San Francisco. The Dons received 18 first place votes, all from the Bay area. Let's do a little figuring.

Eighteen first place votes gives the Dons 180 of their total of 238 votes. That leaves only 58 among 122 votes. That doesn't seem like the Dons are very impressive outside their own back yard. That also means that at least 64 sports writers didn't even mention the Dons.

Compared to the 18 first place votes received by San Francisco the total first place votes of the three New York teams in the top thirteen was only 13.

Another sad feature of this system is the failure of such teams as Wyoming, Louisville, Colorado, Hamline, and Toledo, which incidentally received 2 first place votes, to even make the top twenty.

Bowling Green has made two cross country trips, one to the east coast and one to the west coast. In both cases they ran into tough conditions, tough competition, and tough luck. Yet they don't even rate in the first 33 teams. We would like to bet that Bowling Green could knock off half the alleged top fives in the country.

Kittens split two with Papooses as weird ending mars final tilt

Wayne Soffe's injury-riddled freshmen managed to gain a split in their two games over the weekend. The Kittens, facing the strong Utah first year squad, dropped the Friday night tilt at Salt Lake City, 53-44, but came back to nip the Papooses Saturday night, 46-44.

The weekend stand-off gave the Kittens a very respectable season's mark of eight wins and only two losses. Both of the defeats have come at the hands of the Ute squad, whom the BYU frosh have also beaten twice.

Friday night Papoose center Kent Bates, former Idaho Falls star, put on a tremendous exhibition of his scoring versatility to cap honors with 23 points. Many of Bates' deuces came on tip-ins where he used his 6 ft 6 in. frame to good advantage.

The game was a tight one all the way with four points being the widest margin separating the two clubs. The Utes opened up in the last three minutes, however to win going away. Joe Richey and Harold Christensen led the BYU scoring with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Sanford tallied nine for the home team. The half-time score was 25-24, with the Kittens in front.

The Saturday clash was a real thriller for 39½ minutes. The final half-minute will go down in history as buffoonery of the first order.

With but one half minute to go, the Papooses obtained possession at mid-court. Their coach immediately tried to substitute, and what followed defies description. The timekeeper sprang to his feet with the air of a lioness defending its young (he was a he, by the way), and, with grandiose gestures, indicated that the proposed substitution was illegal. He made it sound like the Constitution was in danger of being desecrated.

With alacrity, BYU Coach Wayne Soffe entered the discussion by suggesting that the clock continue to run if it were illegal to stop it. Whereupon said timepiece ticked off the remaining 30 seconds while the referee, the Utah coach, and all the Utah players were faithfully pleading with the timekeeper to stop it.

To clinch their argument the Kittens dashed off the floor in the general direction of the shower room, leaving a and but wiser bunch of Papooses in their wake, and that's what it looked like when they left the floor.

The ruling was, of course, technically correct since the clock is only stopped for fouls in the last two minutes under a new ruling. Still, if given to profanity, we might say it was one helluva way for the game to end.

Scoring honors went to the Kittens' big center, Loren Dunn. The "Booie" amazed the fans with his "broken arm" hook, which netted him most of his 17 points. MacFarlane, with 14, and Bates, who made 10 before he fouled out midway through the third quarter, spearheaded the Redskin offense.

The enforced idleness of Boyd Jarman hurt the Kittens on both nights, more so Friday when Bates and Lewis ran wild under the boards. Jarman, limping noticeably, saw but little action. Glen Rupp, the squad's tallest man at 6 ft 6 in., was not even in uniform.

Here are the box scores of the two games.

First round intramural finales find two fives still undefeated

Last week's play completed the first half of the men's intramural basketball schedule. The top teams in league have won the right to play in the tournament for the championship with the second half winners.

Monday's league champ is the Gamma Tau squad who came up to knock the Brickers off their perch. The Wednesday's league kings are the Lambda Delt boys who came through with a seven win and no loss record. In the Tuesday league we find the Wyoming five in first spot, where they have been all the way.

Monday's League
After losing the first game, the Gamma Tau crew won five straight to share league honors. The high flying Brickers dropped two, one to the Vikings and the other to the Gamma Tau team, to put them in the second place tie with the Tausigs. The hard-luck Tritons went through the first half without hitting the winners column.

Team	Won	Lost

Tuesday's League

Six straight in the win column put Wyoming on top of this league. An easy win over Uintah Basin put the final touch on the Wyoming crown. Riohouse the second spot holders came through with five wins, one lost record. Their only loss came at the hands of Wyoming.

Wednesday's League
It was Lambda Delt all the way. The LDS crew had an easy time of it as they trounced the Bookstore squad, 72-16 to end the first half. The Handlucers will replace the Rebels in the next half. Here's hoping they don't have as bad luck as the Rebels.

Wyoming victory tainted by fouls

With Wyoming squarely in the middle of the red hot conference race, it seems that the officials, at least, will not let the Cowboys lose at Laramie.

In last Saturday night's Utah State game, the Laramie crew had only 10 field goals to 15 for the Aggies, yet won the game going away, 48-42. How? Simple. They made 26 free throws.

In all a total of 35 personal fouls were called against the Aggies, who beat Wyoming once at Logan. Five of the Utah State boys went out on fouls including four of the starters. The fouling-out process started right after the second half began, when Holo Johnson got the rest of the night off.

Oh yes, two Cowboys went out on fouls. Jerry Reed and Keith Bloom, neither of whom can be classed as "indispensable".
